

Photographer

Victoria & Albert Museum

The V&A Photographic Studio is seeking to employ a photographer to work within the Object Photography Team in the museum's Photographic Studio. The collection of the V&A is both varied and large and the post-holder will be expected to be both versatile and to be able to respond quickly and efficiently to cope with a wide variety of cultural objects. The post will contribute to the photography of the collection for V&A publications, Future Plan, the museum website and for collections management systems. They will be expected to share skills and undertake work within the other Photographic Studio teams as appropriate and work at all Museum sites and on location.

Candidates will have a recognised photographic qualification, a portfolio of professional work, and to be able to demonstrate a full knowledge of imaging software. They will be expected to become part of a large team and to be able to work both under supervision and under their own initiative.

The post-holder will also be expected to undertake training to become proficient at scientific imaging techniques for x-ray imaging, infra-red and ultra-violet photography.
