

Head of Education

National Galleries Scotland

The Head of Education occupies an important position within the National Galleries of Scotland. As well as exercising leadership in the management of all educational staff and programmes (on-site, off-site and online), and also develops NGS learning strategy in line with NGS priorities as outlined in the Corporate Plan. You will ensure that the Department achieves its strategic objectives and that Education is viewed across the NGS as a core activity that is properly integrated into the Public Programme.

The post holder will work as part of a close-knit team in which mutual respect and excellent communication are essential. You are required to have extensive experience of arts education, ideally within a gallery setting, excellent people-management skills and a creative and efficient approach to learning and access.
