

Photographer - Information Age

Science Museum Group

Information Age is a major new gallery being developed at the Science Museum dealing with the history of communications technologies through to the present day and is due to open in 2014. This gallery is object-rich, supported by varied interpretation and innovative interactivity.

You will be expected to produce technically informative and creatively exciting digital images of objects from the museum's collections and on loan to us for use in this prestigious new permanent gallery. Resulting images will be used primarily to illustrate a website showcasing the diverse nature of the gallery and its content, but must also be suitable for a wide range of educational and commercial uses.

The successful applicant will need to be able to demonstrate an ability to deliver consistently high volume, high quality, creative images to very specific deadlines. You must be a real team player with excellent communication skills and a flexible approach to your work.

A formal professional qualification to HND or higher in Photography and demonstrable practical post qualification experience are essential for this role.
