

Senior Paintings Conservator

Victoria & Albert Museum

The Conservation Department has a worldwide reputation for the excellence of its practical work, for innovative ideas, for the teaching of conservation practice and for pioneering the scientific and ethical approach to conservation. The successful applicant will be expected to uphold this reputation.

The post is to assist with the preparation of c.60 paintings for display in newly refurbished galleries, Europe 1600 – 1800, within the V&A. The new galleries are due to open in December 2014.

Candidates should have substantial practical experience, qualification from a recognised training programme, and should be able to work independently as well as part of a team. Previous experience of working on large exhibitions or displays would be an advantage.

The closing date for applications is 9 June 2013.
